

Male Versatile Sexual Offenders in Taiwan

Authors : Huang Yueh Chen, Sheng Ang Shen

Abstract : Purpose: Sexual assault has always been a highly anticipated crime in Taiwan. People assume that the career of sexual offenders tends to be highly specialized. This study hopes to analyze the crime career and risk factors of offenders by means of another classification. Methods: A total of 145 sexual offenders were sentenced on the parole or expiration date from 2009 to 2011, through analysis of official existing documents such as 'Re-infringement risk assessment report' and 'case assessment report'. Results: The section 'Various Types of Crimes' of criminal career is analyzed. The highest number of 'versatile sexual offender' followed by 'adult sexual offender' is about 2.5, representing more than 1.5 kinds of non-sex crimes besides sexual crimes. Different specialized sexual offenders have had extensive experience in the 'Sexual Assault Experiences in Children and School', 'Static 99 Levels', 'Pre-Commuted Substance Use', 'Excited Deviant Sexual Behavior', 'Various Types of Crimes,' and 'Sexual Crime in Forerunner', 'Type of Index Crime' and other projects to achieve significant differences. Conclusions: Resources continue to be devoted to specialized offenders, the character of first-time sexual offender depends on further research and makes the public aware of the different assumptions of diversified offenders from traditional professional offenses that reduce unnecessary panic in society.
