

Linguistic Analysis of the Concept 'Relation' in Russian and English Languages

Authors : Nadezhda Obvintceva

Abstract : The article gives the analysis of the concept 'relation' from the point of view of its realization in Russian and English languages on the basis of dictionaries articles. The analysis reveals the main difference of representation of this concept in both languages. It is the number of lexemes that express its general meanings. At the end of the article the author gives an explanation of possible causes of the difference and touches upon the issue about analytical phenomena in the vocabulary.

Keywords : concept, comparison, lexeme, meaning, relation, semantics

Conference Title : ICCL 2015 : International Conference on Cognitive Linguistics

Conference Location : Zurich, Switzerland

Conference Dates : January 13-14, 2015