

Indo-Pak Relationship: Understanding the Past to Make Sense of the Future

Authors : Aneri Mehta, Krunal Mehta

Abstract : The unpredictable and vacillating relationship between India and Pakistan since days of Independence struggle is known world over. And this instability has never lost its magnitude to decrease the tensions between the two countries. Since India aspires to run for the race of future superpower and Pakistan struggles to remove the tag of a highly fickle and under developed economy; ruined largely not by the outsiders, but its own people and systems; it becomes really important to gauge what steps would these neighbors take in years to come. The progress and stability of both countries heavily relies on the favorable equations between the two nations. Therefore the paper tries to trace some roots of their faltering relationship and attempts to predict their future in a multidimensional perspective.

Keywords : economy, faltering relationship, multidimensional perspective, international relations

Conference Title : ICSS 2014 : International Conference on Social Sciences

Conference Location : London, United Kingdom

Conference Dates : November 28-29, 2014