

Comparative Analysis of the Performance Between Public and Private Companies: Explanatory Factors

Authors : Atziri Moreno Vite, David Silva Gutiérrez

Abstract : Oil companies have become the key player in the world energy scenario thanks to their strong control of the level of hydrocarbon reserves and production. The present research aims to identify the main factors that explain the results of these companies through an in-depth review of the specialized literature and to analyze the results of these companies by means of econometric analysis with techniques such as Data Envelopment Analysis (DEA). The results show the relevance and impact of factors such as the level of employment or investment of the company.
