

Finding and Obtaining Special Education Services Globally: Research and Development

Authors : Melissa Hartley, Erika McCoy

Abstract : Military-connected children with disabilities often require services in different countries throughout their school career. This research and development text seeks to provide current practices in finding and obtaining comparable special education services globally. Considerations in service provision include: language of the service provider, service delivery format, current service availability and finding comparable services, location of services, and readily available services. After providing current practices, the researchers will engage the audience in brainstorming additional ways at finding and obtaining comparable special education services globally.

Keywords : collaboration, international education, service delivery, special education services
