

A Survey on Protests Against Compulsory Hejab in Iran From Iranian Women's Point of View After Mahsa Amini`S Death: A Grounded Theory Approach

Authors : Shirin Arefi

Abstract : In Iran, women and girls are treated as second class citizens and suffer from many discrimination and inequality such as compulsory Hejab, a phenomena which has required all women to wear the hijab head-covering since the 1979 Islamic revolution. Now, the crackdown of new government has caused a massive uproar in the country. The morality police also continue to curb the choices of women, and the latest unfortunate incidents accelerate the hardened rules. The author is going to survey the views and of women against compulsory Hejab and morality and chastity police arrests. The methodology is a qualitative one in which narratives of them are coded based on grounded theory and horizons of the process is explained by phenomenological research as well. The findings and results will show the current attitudes of women of Hejab and their reactions against morality police behaviors.

Keywords : compulsory hejab, morality police, people, arrest

Conference Title : ICPHR 2023 : International Conference on Philosophy of Human Rights

Conference Location : Oslo, Norway

Conference Dates : June 22-23, 2023