

Education, Learning and Management: Empowering Individuals for the Future

Authors : Ngong Eugene Ekia

Abstract : Education is the foundation for the success of any society as its impact transcends across all sectors, including economics, politics, and social welfare. It is through education that individuals acquire the necessary knowledge and skills to succeed in life and contribute meaningfully to society. However, the world is changing rapidly, and it is vital for education systems to adapt to these changes to remain relevant. In this paper, we will discuss the current trends and challenges in education and management and propose solutions that can enable individuals to thrive in an ever-evolving world.

Keywords : access to education, effective teaching and learning, strong management practices, and empowering and personal development
