

Time Management in the Public Sector in Nigeria

Authors : Sunny Ewankhiwimen Aigbomian

Abstract : Time, is a scarce resource and in everything we do, time is required to accomplish any given task. The need for this presentation is predicated on the way majority of Nigerian especially in the public sector operators see "Time Management". Time as resources cannot be regained if lost or managed badly. As a significant aspect of human life it should be handled with diligence and utmost seriousness if the public sector is to function as a coordinated entity. In our homes, private life and offices, we schedule different things to ensure that some things do not go the unexpected. When it comes to service delivery on the part of government, it ought to be more serious because government is all about effect and efficient service delivery and "Time" is a significant variable necessary to successful accomplishment. The need for Nigerian government to re-examine time management in her public sector with a view of repositioning the sector to be able to compete well with other public sectors in the world. The peculiarity of Time management in Public Sector in Nigerian context as examined and some useful recommendations of immerse assistance proffered.

Keywords : Nigeria, public sector, time management, task

Conference Title : ICBCPM 2024 : International Conference on Business Continuity Planning and Management

Conference Location : Paris, France

Conference Dates : January 18-19, 2024