

Management Trainee Program

Authors : Ambreen Amir Ali

Abstract : In today's dynamic environment, it has become very crucial to have comprehensive management trainee program to hire future leaders of organization. It is being proved that fresh graduates mostly join organizations because of its institution but later on they leave organization because of their immediate manager or supervisor. The concept of coaching and mentoring in talent management systems are very important, because mentors are those who can advise, facilitate, help and support new entrants to advance in their career. When it comes to going for talent hunt, one point needs to be highlighted that MTs are the raw talent for your organization, now it's the responsibility of employers to nourish them, polish and develop them so that they can enthusiastically take care of senior leadership roles.
