

Primary Cryptococcal Pneumonia in an HIV Positive Filipino Patient

Authors : Mark Andrew Tu, Raymond Olazo, Cybele Abad

Abstract : Cryptococcosis is an invasive infection most commonly found in patients who are immuno compromised. However, patients with this infection usually present with meningitis and rarely pulmonary infection in isolation. We present a case of a Filipino HIV patient who developed cryptococcal pneumonia without meningitis.

Keywords : Cryptococcal Pneumonia, HIV, Filipino, immune system

Conference Title : ICHA 2015 : International Conference on HIV and AIDS

Conference Location : London, United Kingdom

Conference Dates : May 25-26, 2015