

Employment Problems of Graduands Graduated Form Vocational High Schools

Authors : Refik Uyanöz, Sadife Güngör, Sevilay Konya

Abstract : The aim of this study is to show the employing ability of vocational students. And also, the employment problems of these students are emphasized in this study. The rapid development in technology and information and increased qualified labor is widely affects labor market. On the other hand, labor market will look for educated, qualified, talented and young people. Because of this reason, qualified staff should be educated at vocational high schools. Vocational high schools are one of the best institutions to educate qualified staff. In this research, the conditions of vocational high schools are studied. The difference between the employment policies and current employment problems are researched.

Keywords : vocational high school, employment, employment problems, vocational students

Conference Title : ICBEMS 2014 : International Conference on Business, Economics and Management Sciences

Conference Location : Paris, France

Conference Dates : December 30-31, 2014