

Sustainable Behavior and Design in Chinese Traditional Culture

Authors : Jin Chuhao

Abstract : Sustainable design is the key for the human to realize the harmonious development. However, sustainable design requires localization that combines their own regional culture's characteristics, then forms the most common cultural identity. As a result, the concept of sustainable design integrates into social behavior and promotes the harmonious development. Chinese Confucian doctrine is one of the important thoughts of human culture, which is accepted by more and more people. This paper summarizes the sustainable concept from the Chinese traditional culture and local design, discusses how they change the life of human being and produces enlightenment and significance to China and world.
