

Public Policy Making Process in Developing Countries: Case Study of Turkish Health System

Authors : Hakan Akin

Abstract : The aim of this study was to examine the policy making process in Turkish Health System. This policy making process will be examined through public policy change theories. Since political actors played in the formulation of public policies also explains the type of policy change, this actors will be inspected in the supranational and national basis. Also the transformation of public policy in the Turkish health care system will be analysed under the concepts of New right ideology, neo-liberalism, neo-conservatism and governance. And after this analyse, the outputs and outcomes of this transformation will be discussed in the context of developing countries.

Keywords : policy transfer, policy diffusion, policy convergence, new right, governance

Conference Title : ICPPSS 2015 : International Conference on Public Policy and Social Sciences

Conference Location : Paris, France

Conference Dates : June 25-26, 2015