

The Reality of Engineering Education in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia and Its Suitability to The Requirements of The Labor Market

Authors : Hamad Albadr

Abstract : With the development that has occurred in the orientation of universities from liability cognitive and maintain the culture of the community to responsibility job formation graduates to work according to the needs of the community development; representing universities in today's world, the prime motivator for the wheel of development in the community and find appropriate solutions to the problems they are facing and adapt to the demands of the changing environment. In this paper review of the reality of engineering education in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia and its suitability to the requirements of the labor market, where they will be looking at the university as a system administrator educational using System Analysis Approach as one of the methods of modern management to analyze the performance of organizations and institutions, administrative and quality assessment. According to this approach is to deal with the system as a set of subsystems as components of the main divided into : input, process, and outputs, and the surrounding environment, will also be used research descriptive method and analytical , to gather information, data and analysis answers of the study population that consisting of a random sample of the beneficiaries of these services that the universities provided that about 500 professionals about employment in the business sector.

Keywords : universities in Saudi Arabia, engineering education, labor market, administrative, quality assessment

Conference Title : ICBEE 2014 : International Conference on Biotechnology and Environment Engineering

Conference Location : London, United Kingdom

Conference Dates : January 20-21, 2014