

Increasing Number of NGOs and Their Conduct: A Case Study of Far Western Region of Nepal

Authors : Raju Thapa

Abstract : Non-Governmental Organizations (NGOs) are conducting activities in Nepal with the overall objective to strengthen peace, progress and prosperity in the society. Based on the research objectives, this study has tried to trace out the reasons behind massive growth of NGOs and the trends that have shaped the handling and functioning of NGOs in the Kailali district. The outcomes of this research are quite embarrassing for NGOs officials. Based on the findings of this research, NGOs are expected to review their guiding principal, integrity and conduct for the betterment of the society.

Keywords : NGO, trends, increasing, conduct, integrity, guiding principle, legal, governance, human resources, public trust, financial, collaboration, networking

Conference Title : ICHRHS 2016 : International Conference on Human Rights and Human Security

Conference Location : Paris, France

Conference Dates : June 20-21, 2016