

Identifying Characteristics of Slum in Palembang Riverbanks Area, Indonesia

Authors : Rhapyalyani Herno Della, Nyimas Septi Rika Putri, Rika Nabila

Abstract : The growth of population and economic activities in urban areas needs support economic development, needs to be balanced with adequate environmental infrastructure development. Settlement can avoid from rundown condition and uninhabitable if the development of urban area accordance with healthy development. Identifying database of slum in this study reference to the Review of the Spatial Plan Development of Palembang City, Laws of Public Works Department about Technical Guidelines on the Quality Improvement Housing and Slum and Urban Spatial Global Report on Human Settlements 2003. A case study for identifying in Palembang riverbanks area are located in two districts; Ilir Timur I and Ilir Timur II. This study do the identification of slum areas based on several variables about physical and non physical aspect, then the result of identification are used to define a policy that can be used to improve the area.

Keywords : slum, riverbanks area, urban area, infrastructure

Conference Title : ICSEUS 2016 : International Conference on Society, Economics and Urban Studies

Conference Location : Barcelona, Spain

Conference Dates : August 11-12, 2016