

A Comparative Study of Corporate Cultural Values in Mergers and Acquisitions

Authors : Renzhong Peng, Weiping Wu

Abstract : Based on the framework of Hofstede's cultural dimension, this study conducted a comparative study on the similarities and differences between national cultures and corporate cultural values, analyzed and interpreted the reasons why Chinese overseas Mergers and Acquisitions (M&A) cultural integration results in the success or failure. The findings of this study indicate that in the process of M&A, the corporate cultural values from Chinese and western corporations are proved to be quite different as a result of their diversities of national cultures, and the strategies for the integration of cultural corporate values are of vital importance and can determine the effects of the M&A, which can be referential to managers who intend to have the idea of M&A and those who have cultural integration in the process of M&A.

Keywords : comparative study, cultural integration, corporate cultural values, Mergers and Acquisitions

Conference Title : ICIIM 2016 : International Conference on Intercultural Information Management

Conference Location : Venice, Italy

Conference Dates : August 08-09, 2016