

Direct Democracy: The Best Administrative System for Nigeria

Authors : Inuwa Abdu Ibrahim

Abstract : The research assessed representative democracy as an administrative system in Nigeria, by highlighting the failure of the state. It also looked at some components of direct democracy in Switzerland. Therefore, the paper focused on direct democracy, using secondary sources of data. In conclusion, the research offers direct democracy as a solution to the failure of the Nigerian administrative system especially as it affects participation, developmental programmes and institutionalized corruption.

Keywords : corruption, direct democracy, national development, Nigeria, participation
