

Identifying Self-Disclosure in Indonesian Reality Show: A Comprehensive Study

Authors : Dwi Ashari

Abstract : This study attempts to disclose people's privacy in Indonesian media. Many television (henceforth: TV) programs have shown the exposure of people's privacy. People, not only celebrities, who appear in TV program often, share their life to the participants to get very intimate self-disclosure with them. Indonesia, as one of the countries with highest population, has many people who watch television everyday. This can be the major factor for some TV stations to create a program to get people's attention to gain more profit. This study examines some factors of Indonesia TV programs that share the people's privacy. The relation of privacy in Indonesia TV programs will be related to the concept of self-disclosure and intimacy between the people who share and watch the programs.
