

The Onus of Human to Society in Accordance with Constitution and Traditions

Authors : Qamar Raza

Abstract : This paper deals with the human concern and onus which every person should provide to his/her society. Especially the rules and regulations described in constitution or traditions which we have inherited from ancestors should be followed, and also our lives should be led in accordance with them. The main concern of paper would be personal behavior with others in a good manner especially what he/she should exercise for society's welfare. As human beings are the fundamental organ of society, who play a crucial role in reforming the society, they should try their best to develop it as well as maintain harmony, peace, we-feeling and mutual contact in the society. Focusing on how the modern society and its elements keep society successful. Regulations of our constitution and tradition are essential for reforming the society. In a nutshell, a human has to mingle in his society and keep mutual respect and understand the value of others as well as for himself.

Keywords : constitution, human beings, society, traditions

Conference Title : ICIPT 2018 : International Conference on Islam, Philosophy and Theology

Conference Location : Mumbai, India

Conference Dates : February 22-23, 2018