

The Typology of Social Enterprise: Case Study of Community-Development Enterprise in Indonesia

Authors : Aluisius Pratono, Deddy Marciano, Suyanto Suyanto

Abstract : The emerging model of community development social enterprise is one of the social enterprise models. However, a precise view of the community development enterprise is still lacking. Hence, this study was aimed at deepening the concept of the community development social enterprise model at the place management and development context. Multiple case studies in Indonesia context were observed to explore the typical criteria of the community development enterprise model in place-making practices. The research paradigm used interpretative approach, which involves dialectic process between the researchers and research participants. This study highlights some principles in the community-development enterprise, which cover an entrepreneurial dimension, social goals, participatory governance, and co-management. The result makes a contribution to conceptual literature occurs at the criteria of social enterprises by highlighting the typology of community development enterprise.

Keywords : community development enterprise, social purposes, economic project, participatory governance

Conference Title : ICSEI 2018 : International Conference on Social Entrepreneurship and Innovation

Conference Location : Tokyo, Japan

Conference Dates : May 28-29, 2018